SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1886. SMOKY HILL CATTLE POOL.

ore than seventy-five per cent of the ittle in the pool died the past winter.

In East St. Louis the strikers continue in a great measure, to prevent railroad ess. Interruptions continue at various points, especially in Texas.

The Gould system is being operate safully. Knights who are known to taken back into the company's employ. Plenty of help is available.

Several assemblies of Knights have issued a manifesto to the whole world, asking for assistance in grasping the throat tion of his sight seeing in Salt Lake City; of the tyrant Monopoly. Gould's blood of his ride across the Sierre Nevadas is demanded. This manifesto is regarded where the snow was ten or fifteen feet as the last frantic effort of a bad case of lost grip.

LISTEN A MOMENT.

We have passed through a hard winter. There is unanimity of sentiment on this the Pacific. This tale would be incompoint. Many have toiled in vain to hold the live stock which they had worked so that George rode home on a ticket which hard for years to acquire. Husbands he had purchased from San Francisco to to snowing. and wives, sons and daughters are, in not Kansas City for thirty dollars; that, on a few instances, alike overwhelmed with a great grief. Many are the o'ertrue tales of this kind which the writer could relate. But every cloud has a silver lining. To him who remains resolute, defeat is always turned into victory. Your City, and reaching there that evening; determination to-day is probably to sell your cattle—to sell for next to nothing if next to something can not be realized.

City, and reaching there that the temptation to stop at Wa-Keeney was too great to be overcome. He let the rebate go.

Every thing will wear a different look within two months. One-half of the cattle in western Kansas have not died the past winter to render the other half valueless. The return of clear-cut confidence may be slow, but it is coming. It will bring something along. What will it be? It strikes us it will be greatly enhanced values for the cattle that still live. How does it look to you?

Again: We believe in a regular rotation, or cycle, of years between extremes of average rainfall and temperature. You perhaps do, too, if you have observed to good purpose. Each of these cycles issay of some seven years' duration. We expect to see a return to western Kansas of winters which average to be mild. If this region is suited to one of the many industries known to mankind, stock growing catches it. For this purpose, if properly understood, it is unsurpassed. Than to assert this, we know not how to pay it a greater tribute. If what has been learned of late years of the absolute necessity of sheltering, watering and feeding stock with punctuality shall be observed in the future, the stock grower will thrive. This is the gauge. If you mean to observe it, respond promptly to mean to observe it, respond promptly to him who tries to purchase the remnant of your stock for a song, No you don't.

In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it."
